THEIR TRUE NATURE AND COMMON-SENSE TREATMENT.

LIVER-DISEASES.

The writer desires to preface the consideration of the diseases mentioned at the head of this article by saying that the truthfulness of the theories which he is about to advance has been confirmed by a vast experience, embracing the successful treatment of thousands of cases, and he therefore promulgates his views without fear of their being successfully controverted. Ha holds that to a congested, torpid, and disdiverse symptoms, and affecting various organs. Many of these diseases are usually treated as if primary affections, both physician and patient being doomed to disap pointment by an utter lack of favorable results; for to treat a disease successfully we must have a clear conception of its true

THE "HOUSEKEEPER" OF HEALTH.

The liver is the largest gland in the human system. It is the great purifying organ of the system, and has very appropriately been termed the "housekeeper" of our health. The importance of the liver as a blood-purifying and excretory organ cannot be overestimated.

The foul and morbid matter absorbed from the various tissues and taken into the blood is received therefrom by a healthy liver and converted into bile. When the liver becomes torpid or congested it falls to eliminate this vast amount of noxlous substance, which, therefore, remains to polson the blood and be conveyed to every parof the system. Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organsthe lungs, skin, etc.-but these organs be come overtaxed in performing this labor in addition to their natural functions and cannot long withstand the pressure, but be come variously diseased.

The blood, surcharged with daily accumu inted poison, as the result of torpor of the liver, unduly stimulates the nerves of the heart and produces chronic tritation, pal pitation, or excitement of that organ, de-veloping forms of neart-disease.

The stomach and bowels cannot escape disease, and costiveness, hemorrhoids dropsy, dvspepsia, or diarrhea, and many other forms of chronic disease are among the natural results. nd us 10 cents in stamps for our Com-

SCROFULOUS DISEASES.

A long series of diseases, commonly known as scrofulous, is caused by torpor of the liver—the want of proper exerction of the poisonous, festering matter circulating in the blood. These cause swellings about the neck, enlarged tonsis, scrofulous sore eyes, running ulcers, discharges from the cais, catarrh or ozena, fever-sores, white swellings, hip-joint disease, ulceration of bones internal swellings, pleeration of the dies too numerous to mention

The bile-poisoned blood resulting from faulty action of the liver passes from the upper and right cavity of the heart to the lower cavity, thence directly to the lungs circulating through all parts of these most delicate organs. The tissues of the lungs are poisoned and irritated, and thus invite the scrofulous humors with which the blood is burdened. In this way consumption, which is scrofuls of the lungs, so defined by

The bile-poisoned blood is in a measure exygenized and purified by the lungs; but in this effort these organs are overworked and irritated, and the foul blood-poison may be smelled in the man's offensive breath. Nervous cough, bronchitis, and consumption itself are the natural results, The lungs would not have become diseased

COMMON-SENSE TREATMENT.

We appeal to the reader if it is not reason able to suppose that all these maladies that an be clearly traced to a common origin of a remedy known to remove such cause All those several divisions of maladies are many times treated as if entirely unlike in their nature and demanding different classes of remedies, according to the pecu-larity of symptoms manifested. The wylter, nevertheless, confidently asserts that all the diseases named in this article can be and onstantly cured by the use of a potent alterative or blood-purifier and liver-invig orator. The active remedial properties of the most efficient agents now known of the above classes of medicines are scientifically Discovery, which acts especially upon the iver, and through that organ upon the lood, cleansing and invigorating the system

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY does not debilitate the liver by over stimu lation, nor irritate the stomach and bowel by disturbing the delicate processes of digestion, neither does it act with severity upon the blood; but it operates so gently, insensibly, and yet with so much certainty and efficiency, that it excites the surprise and admiration of all who use it. If the bowels are unusually singuish (chronic constitution) it is advisable, in conjunction with the Discovery, to use

my great joy."

Many times women call on their family physicians, one with dyspepsia, another with palpitation, another with backache or nervousness, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent doctor reparate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all symptoms caused by some uterine disorder. While the physician is ignorant of the cause of suffering, he encourages his papoor sufferer is no better, but probably worse for the delay, treatment, and other complications made. A proper medicine directed to the cause would perhaps have entirely removed the disease, thereby instituting comfort instead of prolonged
